DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 5-23 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim can not depend from another multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claims 5-23 not been further treated on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grim '602.

Grim discloses in figures 1-18 a splint comprising at least one rigid globally concave shell 18, a chamber 24 made of a flexible plastic (plastic film), a means (34, 36), of holding the shell in position, the shell includes a flexible area 95, made from rubber, vinyl or synthetic rubber, the shell is made of polypropylene copolymer, and is rigid in the central part and flexible along each longitudinal edge. However, Grim doesn't disclose the flexible area being made of styrene ethylene butylene styrene. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made that the flexible area as taught by Grim could be made of (SEBS) because this is a material that is flexible and interchangeable with rubber, vinyl or synthetic rubber. The shell has a rigid central part (fig. 11) and flexible area (at 95), the flexible area has a rigid portion 12, therein, a porous element 89, on the inside of the chamber, the porous material is foam, the means for holding includes straps (34, 36), having free ends attached to the shells, a right foot and left foot representative (the shell can be on either foot), tabs (fig. 6), fixed to the outer walls, male and female attachment means (velcro) and a method of manufacturing a shell as recited in claims 22-23. The splint includes two shells that have slots 50 and each tab is inserted under the user's foot. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made that the straps disclosed by Grim could be made of a velvet fabric with the tabs because velvet is a durable fabric that would allow the straps to be fasten tightly around the splint.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed January 9, 2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that Grim doesn't disclose the shell being made of styrene ethylene butylenes block copolymer or the single shell having a rigid part and a flexible part. However, as set forth above, using styrene ethylene butylenes block copolymer versus the polymer disclosed by Grim is a design choice because both materials are interchangeable. Also Grim disclosed a single shell having a rigid part 20 and a flexible part 95. The two parts are bonded together as shown in figure 11.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
